Traveling with Airguns to Sweden

Sweden has a regulation in the law about airguns. It says that you need to have a permit to own and use all type of airguns that has more power then 10 Joule at the muzzle.

This has caused a lot of trouble to sort out how people from other countries, that does not need a permit for their airguns, can travel to Sweden and compete legally.

We have finally found a solution for this problem.

For competitors that are planning on anticipating in the airgun events and have airguns that is more powerfull than 10 Joule need to do whats mentioned below.

They need to have their police authority to write out a statement that they are allowed to own and use their airguns without a permit in their country.

This statement must be enclosed with the application.

You only need to have one police officer to write this statement down and sign it and it will be valid for that whole country.

Then they have to apply for a permission to convey firearms to Sweden, on the same way as for your outhur guns, and have it cleared with the coustom as well.

Since this information was not presented or known to us until now, the police officer in charge of the permits for our competition, has agreed to handel all applications free of charge for all people that already have applied for a permit for their firearms.

For the Nordic countries the same rules apply, you also have to get permits for your airguns on the same way. This will allso be handled free of charge according to the police.
